

Kenneth J. Enos is a partner in the Business Reorganization and Restructuring Section of Young Conaway Stargatt & Taylor, LLP.

Ken joined Young Conaway in 2004. He has represented clients in all aspects of both in-court and out-of-court corporate restructuring processes, including debtors, official committees, foreign representatives, lenders, secured and unsecured creditors, ad hoc groups and purchasers. Ken has represented companies in their restructuring efforts across all industries including in the energy, retail, healthcare, telecommunications, real estate, hospitality, aviation, textile, and manufacturing industries.

Ken received a J.D. from Penn State University, The Dickinson School of Law, an M.B.A., summa cum laude, from Penn State University, and a B.S., cum laude, from Grove City College.